GOLF DAY - BETTERBALL STABLEFORD

This past Saturday, Port Shepstone Country Club hosted the Lucky's Discount Centre golf day that brought together an enthusiastic crowd of golfers for a memorable event.

The atmosphere was lively from start to finish, with a fantastic turnout and a day full of great energy. Our participants enjoyed the amazing prizes, spirited competition, and a celebration of community that made the occasion a standout success.

Amazing prizes were awarded to the 6 winning betterball teams, adding extra excitement to the round. It was a fitting reward for a day filled with great golf and even greater spirit. The balance helped create a welcoming atmosphere and a strong sense of community throughout the day. From tee-off to the final putt, the support and enthusiasm on display exceeded expectations. It was clear that the event resonated with everyone involved and delivered a memorable experience for all.

We would like to thank everyone who participated, as well as the sponsors and organizers who helped make the day such a success. Their support played a vital role in creating an event that was both enjoyable and impactful. Thank you to Lucky's Discount Centre for hosting their golf day with us yet again and we look forward to the events in the future as we continue to bring people together in meaningful ways.

A WORD FROM OUR GREENKEEPER...

JESSE VERSTER

Hi everyone. Not much happening on the golf course, just very dry. No growth at all at the moment. We did aerate again just to help the greens from compaction. You will see that lots of the greens have a white layer on them, that's the salt from the borehole. We don't use UGU, that's why any rain will help the greens. This will help to leach the salt out. Till next time ...enjoy the long drives you're getting now 😊 Cheers!

GOLF IS GOOD FOR YOUR MIND

The GolfRSA campaign exploring the benefits of golf continues in the month of May with the theme Golf is Good for your mind.

Golf is one of the few sports that exercises the mind as much as the body. Every round requires concentration, strategic thinking, decision-making and emotional discipline. From selecting the correct club and reading the terrain to judging distance, wind and shot placement, golfers continuously engage important cognitive functions that help keep the brain active and sharp.

Research has shown that activities requiring sustained focus and problem-solving can support cognitive performance and mental agility. Golf challenges players to think several shots ahead, adapt to changing conditions and remain mentally composed under pressure; all valuable exercises for the brain. Experts have also noted that the game activates areas of the brain linked to planning, memory and coordination, making golf an excellent lifelong activity for maintaining cognitive engagement. (National Geographic)

Unlike repetitive exercise, no two golf shots are ever exactly the same. This constant variation requires golfers to analyse, calculate and adjust throughout a round, strengthening concentration and mental processing skills. Studies on golf performance have also highlighted the importance of attention control, decision-making and mental resilience in successful play. (PLOS One)

Golf also teaches patience, discipline and emotional control. Players learn to recover from mistakes, remain focused after setbacks and maintain concentration over several hours - mental skills that are valuable both on and off the course. For juniors, golf helps develop focus, strategic thinking and self-discipline at an early age. For adults and seniors, it provides an enjoyable and stimulating way to keep the mind engaged throughout life.

Golf is truly a game for the mind - a sport that challenges you to think, adapt and focus every time you step onto the course.

Join us on social media or visit our website HERE and share how Golf is Good for your mind and encourage all to make it their #HealthyHabit for the next month!

Enjoy the article and we hope everyone manages to make this #HealthyHabit benefit their mind for the next month!
